4 RESPONSIBILITY

5 PROCEDURE

5.1 Teaching modes and methods

The College will teach all ELICOS courses face-to-face 20 hours a week. There are no online, distance or blended delivery components.

The College uses the TESOL Method of delivery known as the “Direct Method”. The lessons immerse the students in English, in the same way as when a first language is learnt. All teaching is conducted in English (the target language), grammar is taught inductively and there is a focus on speaking and listening.

5.2 Direct Method benefits

The Direct Method facilitates understanding English by establishing a direct association between the word and its meaning and it enables the student to grasp the sentence patterns they hear or read in English. Students are able to express their thoughts and feelings directly in English. It develops fluency of speech and efficiency in writing.

The Direct Method makes the study of English interesting and lively. Study of language through this method becomes interesting, motivating, and active participation because of its emphasis on the spoken idiom. The use of illustrations, objects, use of audio-visual aids, demonstrations etc. assist with the uptake of the language.

The Direct Method facilitates reading, students learn to speak fluently, learn to write fairly quickly and correctly. Students develop a love for the English language as they are constantly immersed in it. More emphasis is put on practice than on theory and the use of every day vocabulary and structures are the first priority.

Oral skills are developed through carefully graded programmes involving question-answer lessons, interaction between the teacher and the learners and intensive classroom drills.

The College feels this is the best method to adopt to learn the English language in a practical and functional manner.

5.3 Class approach in using Direct Method

Utilising the Direct Method teachers are able to use the Presentation, Practice and Production approach (PPP Approach) to teach English. This approach is taught in the CELTA course and many other TESOL courses.

The PPP approach used by The College is as follows:

Presentation	Presentation is the beginning or introduction to learning language. It's also presenting the current language lesson to the student. Depending on the course, this could be such subjects as sounds, parts of speech, vocabulary, sentence structure and grammar.
Practice	Practice is the process that facilitates progress from the initial stage through to the second one. The students will Practice what they are learning through activities, role plays, demonstrations that require them to speak English. Practice exercises progress toward mastery of the concepts presented.
Production	The final component is Production, which is an advanced form of Practice that requires students to think on their own rather than completing the more closely targeted Practice exercises. Production is also the culmination of the learning process, where a learner has become a "user" of the language as opposed to a "student" of the language. Production can be in the form of debates, writing essays, letters, oral presentations, project work etc.

The College will ensure that:

- 5.4.1 Students are placed in a class appropriate to their current language proficiency level, learning goals and learning needs and consistent with their written agreement
